SITE WATCH PROGRAM

The Site Watch Program is part of a larger initiative to promote archaeological site stewardship in Florida. Other programs include a Site Stewardship Agreement, which is a non-binding agreement between private landowners and the State of Florida for the protection of cultural resources on private land, and a program to incorporate archaeological sites into conservation easements. This site stewardship initiative has also produced various educational literatures dealing with conservation easements, public access and interpretation and best management practices for archaeological sites. For more information, please contact the Bureau of Archaeological Research.
